USNSA is holding its Twentieth National Student Congress at the University of Maryland this year, between August 13 and 27. The Congress is the occasion for a thorough discussion of the issues which confront American students and the adoption of USNSA's policy for the coming year. We are expecting over one thousand delegates from about four hundred colleges and universities.

It is my pleasure to invite you to participate in a major symposium entitled "Secrecy in a Free Society: the CIA" on Sunday, August 13, at 7:00 p.m. The symposium will include a dialogue between spokesmen for various positions on the recent controversy surrounding the CIA's involvement with private, voluntary organizations.

I realize that the nature of your position may require that you decline this invitation. Since the panel will focus on the issues concerning the CIA controversy, rather than questions surrounding which organizations were involved and which were not, we felt that an intelligent spokesman from the Agency would lend considerable clarity to the discussion. By August, hopefully, the emotional fervor will have subsided, making possible a rational discussion of a complicated set of questions.

I am hopeful that you will be able to contribute to this forum, and I look forward to your reply.

Sincerely,

W. Eugene Groves
President
